Local Organization Makes Donation to The Boy Scouts

Civic Improvement League Decides to Donate and Turn Money Over to Want to Scout Executive—They
Over Rink on School Grounds.

A meeting of the Civic Improvement League was held at the home of Mrs. R. R. Stener last Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing for business in connection with the league and deciding on plans for the future. After some discussion it was decided to disband the league for the present. This conclusion was arrived at in view of the fact that there are now other organizations in town taking up work in which the league was originally organized. Principal among these is the Boy Scouts and all those present at the meeting signified their willingness and desire to use their influence and energies in support of that organization. With this end in view, a motion was passed authorizing the treasurer to hand over to the treasurer of the Boy Scouts the money now in the league treasury. This amounts to something over $100.00.

As the money was raised by the league for the purpose of eventually giving a skating rink for the school pupils, the members of the league, in turning over the money, request that the Scout executive use their efforts in seeing that the rink is built on school grounds be flooded and put in shape for skating this winter. It was largely through the efforts of Mrs. Geo. Lydell that the Civic Improvement League was first organized, and it was on her motion that it now be disbanded and the money disposed of as above stated. This action on the part of the league will be greatly appreciated by the Boy Scouts and all who are interested in that organization.

Presbyterian Church Remembers D.C. Smith

As a church, last Sunday evening we had a solemn service to remember our dear brother, D.C. Smith, who passed away last week. The church was filled with people, and the service was very touching. The pastor, Mr. D.C. Smith, was remembered with great affection. The church was filled with people, and the service was very touching. The pastor, Mr. D.C. Smith, was remembered with great affection.

The members and adherents of the Gordon Memorial Presbyterian church wish to take advantage of this occasion—the eve of your departure for our old land—to express to you our deep appreciation of your past and our best wishes for the future.

As a member of the Board of Management you have always taken a deep interest in the temporal affairs of the church and helped in every way you could. As a leader of our church you have rendered the most efficient and faithful service in a most unselfish manner. For your patience and forbearance, for your help and aid, for your kind words, we have not only only kept the church together, but have lifted it to a standard of efficiency which its members need not be ashamed.

We wish you a safe and pleasant journey. We hope you will find your new home beyond the Atlantic as good a home as the one you have left, and we sincerely hope to see you back in your old place behind the choir rail, before many months. Please accept this paper as a slight token of our love and respect. Signed on behalf of the congregation and choir.

WM. SHIBARER, D. C. GEO. DUNNETT, Redcliff, Alberta, October 30, 1920.

Concert Last Thursday Was Great Success

The Amuse-Dance theatre was packed to the doors for the concert given last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Gordon Memorial church, and they well enjoyed the entertainment.

The program was put on by members of the choir from St. John's church, Medicine Hat. It was a well balanced program and was made up of a good variety of selections, thus appealing to all tastes.

As a result of this concert the Ladies' Aid cleared something over $100.00, and they feel greatly indebted to the St. John's choir for their services. After the concert those taking part in the program were entertained by the Ladies' Aid at the home of Mrs. M. Moffatt. Here refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was spent.

Joseph Brooker Died Suddenly Last Friday Joseph Brooker, who has been a resident of Redcliff for the past seven years, died suddenly at his home here last Friday evening. Although he was not very old, he had been in poor health for some time, his condition was not considered serious and his ultimate recovery looked forward to. He was born in Odessa thirty-five years ago. He immigrated to the United States about seven years ago and came to Canada. Besides a wife, deceased, leaves one son and one daughter to mourn his loss.

The funeral took place last Sunday afternoon. Service was held in St. Patrick's church, Medicine Hat, and the remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery in that city.

Small Blaze in South End House

About eight o'clock last Thursday evening fire broke out in the building in the south end of town, known as the old house. The fire was caused by a small blaze in the kitchen. The fire was quickly put out by the fire department. The damage done was not serious.

As the building was unoccupied at the time the origin of the fire is a mystery. The building, which is a large brick veneer structure, is owned by Mrs. M. J. Johnson, of Medicine Hat. The damage done was estimated to be only a few hundred dollars and was covered by insurance.

L.A. to Hold Sale of Work

The sale of work and tea to be given under the auspices of the L.A. club, W. V. A. club will be held in the W. V. A. club rooms on Friday, November 19th. Commencing at 8 o'clock in the afternoon refreshments will be served and the sale of work will continue till six. A number of useful articles will be offered at the sale. Come and look the over. Everybody invited.

Alberta Obtains Good Price for Bonds

Tenders for the province of Alberta bonds were received by the provincial treasurer Monday. There were eighteen separate bids. The highest tender was for $100,000. The lowest tender was for $10,000. The average price was 102.5 cents. The bonds were sold at a premium of 2.5 cents.

BOX STRIKING ITEMS

Miss Dobbin, who is teaching at the school here, was confined to her bed for a few days this week, suffering from a severe cold. "The school was closed as a result. We are glad to report that she is now much improved."

Don't forget the dance in the U. P. A. hall on Friday evening of this week under the auspices of the U. P. W. A. Ladies are requested to bring lunch. Everybody welcome.

Red Bellie is making a good job dragging the main road into Medicine Hat. Run her up this way Friday.

Geo. Johnson, formerly of the Box Springs district, has bought a farm near Didsbury through the Soldiers' Settlement Board, and left last week to settle on the land.

James Whitehead, of Box Springs, who has been undergoing treatment in the Medicine Hat hospital, returned home last Saturday. He is now progressing favorably.

We are glad to see a start has been made on the telephone in this district, but we are afraid that if there is not a little more haste made soon the digging of the holes will have to be postponed, and we will have to wait some time yet for connection with central.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Simpson and family, of this district, have moved to Redcliff for the winter. We understand that Mr. and Mrs. James Whitehead are also contemplating moving to town in the near future.

N. C. Larson and family, who have lived in the Box Springs district for several years past, left last Saturday for their new home near Didsbury where Mr. Larson has purchased a farm.

Coal Miners' Strike Is Now Called Off

As a result of the ballot on the government's offer, the coal-miners in the old country was called off yesterday, and after a meeting of miners' delegates immediate resumption of work was ordered.

Figures of balloting by the union showed a majority of 8,400 against accepting the government's offer, but the government's offer was accepted by a majority of 8,400. The total vote was 68,400.

One immediate result of the settlement is the resumption of mining. Friday, and the railway service will be restored. It is expected, on Monday.

GERMANY ATTEMPTING TO FLOOD MARKET. It is not impossible that there will shortly be an endeavor to flood the world's markets with cheap German wheat, says the London Times. The German government is planning to export wheat to the United States and to the United Kingdom.

Installing New Elevator At Glass Plant

Workmen are now busy on the excavation work preparatory to installing a large steel elevator to be used in connection with the new furnace at the glass plant. This furnace is to be used to melt the material which goes into the making of glassware from the mine room to the furnace, and when completed will add greatly to the convenience and efficiency of this part of the plant.

There will be considerable work in connection with this installation, but it is being rushed through as rapidly as possible.

Women's Institute Has Hallowe'en Party

Halloween night the members of the Women's Institute entertained at a "Hallowe'en" party in the Park hall. All the old time games and customs were indulged in and by the way the guests participated in one may find that the year's of married life do not weigh heavily on their shoulders. A number of good costumes, along with the usual decorations, added a festive note to the occasion.

Last but not least, supper, in which of course, pumpkin figured largely, was served.

The next meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the Park hall on Wednesday next, Nov. 10th, at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. On this occasion Mrs. Beattie will give an address on home nursing. Anyone interested is welcome.

Armistice Dance On November 11th

Arrangements are now completed for something out of the ordinary to be held in the hall on Armistice night, Nov. 11th. On that occasion the G. W. V. A. and L. A. are putting on a dance and they are sparing no pains or trouble to make it an event which will be remembered.

Good music will be secured and refreshments will be served during the evening. All are invited to be present and in celebrating the anniversary of this great event in the world's history.

Germans Trying To Stir Up Trouble

A German plot to control the main power of Russia after the fall of Bolsheviks, to aid in crushing England and France and to stir up Japan simultaneously for war with the United States is being developed. It would mean a Russo-German-Japanese alliance to dominate the world by crushing all competition.

To reach a war against the United States in Japan and to get the main power of Russia under German control must be the main points of the Pan-German program during the coming year, declares Count Ernst von Reventlow, for-seeing former editor of the Deutsche Tagblatt-Zeitung, who is supporting the anti-Allied program.

Scotland Votes Wet On Recent Plebiscite

Official results in Glasgow of the liquor option poll shows a comparative vote of 50,000 for the "wet" and 40,000 for the "dry." Four wards voted "dry," nine for total license and 24 for no change. The total vote was 100,000.

There were at least 14 a private attacks on the police and military in the streets of Glasgow Sunday evening. In these attacks six of the police were killed and eight others wounded. One member of the military and one naval man were wounded. One civilian was killed.

Altar Society Holds Most Successful Ball

"Relief" ball presented a gay and lively entertainment last Friday evening when a large crowd of the youth and beauty of the town assembled in the Casino ballroom for the masquerade ball given under the auspices of the Altar society of the Catholic church.

The various costumes made a most interesting sight and when the time came for the judges to award the prizes they experienced great difficulty in picking the winners. The following were awarded prizes:

Ladies Best Costume—Misses Waters and Winifred in Zulu ladies. Best Couple—Mrs. Sheldon and Mrs. Winifred, as Peter and Perret. Gents' Best Character—Rupert King, as Colonel gentlemen; and Geo. Abbott as a Knight.

Gents' Best Costume—Mr. W. Waters as a Clown; D. Klink as a Clown. Best Character—Liamie Jackson as a Queen of Hearts. Girls' Best Character—Annie Jackson as a Queen.

Boys' Best Character—Jim Kerr as a Miner; D. J. Wells as an Irishman. In awarding the prizes the judges took into consideration the manner in which the different costumes were worn, the originality of the costumes, and the manner in which they were worn.

Besides the prize winners there were a number in costume who were deserving of special mention for the excellence of their costumes. This was especially noticeable among the ladies, who made up a large part of the evening's entertainment.

The judges were: Mrs. D. McLaughlin, Mrs. A. N. Collins, Mrs. C. Crooke, and Messrs. M. J. Clark and E. L. Stone.

On the whole the ball was one of the most successful events of the season and the ladies in large are deserving of great praise for the manner in which the evening was conducted throughout.

Supporters of Federal Government Organize

A largely attended meeting of supporters of the present government of Ottawa was held in the city hall, Medicine Hat, last Thursday evening. The meeting was held to organize a National Liberal and Conservative Association for the federal constituency of Medicine Hat.

After passing a resolution endorsing the policy of the political party now in power at Ottawa the following officers were elected:

President—G. M. Blackstock. Vice-President—M. Bell, J. Stender and E. L. Stone. Sec.-Treas.—H. Baker.

Members on the executive committee were: Messrs. Bell, Stender, and D. McLaughlin, and James Jardine was elected to represent the Division in the provincial legislature.

Committees were also appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the visit of Premier Meighen who is to be in Medicine Hat on Wednesday, Nov. 10th.

The presidential election which took place in the United States last Tuesday was an overwhelming victory for the Republican candidate, Warren G. Harding. Latest reports indicate that Harding had carried almost all the states except the south. He carried the state of New York by over a million of votes.

Will Hold Series Of Social Events During the Winter

This Was Decision at Meeting of Chautauque Garterette Hill Last Monday—First Event to Be Held Friday Evening Nov. 12th.

Quite a number of Chautauque garterettes turned out to a meeting called for the purpose of discussing matters in connection with the Chautauque organization. The meeting was held in the City hall and it was quite a success. The decision was made to hold a series of social events during the winter months. These will be of a varied nature, the main idea being the promotion of a social movement along social, moral and intellectual lines.

T. A. Hicks was chosen as chairman of the meeting. After he had outlined the objects of the gathering it was decided to hold a series of social events during the winter months. These will be of a varied nature, the main idea being the promotion of a social movement along social, moral and intellectual lines.

The following officers were elected: Chairman—W. H. Johnston. Secretary—M. O. Klink. Treasurer—T. A. Hicks.

Members: Messrs. Shearer, Messrs. Singer, Sellhorn, Fairbairn, Warren, Collier and Stone, and Mrs. W. H. Johnston. Mrs. Moffatt, Mr. Waller and Miss.

It was also decided to hold the first social event in the City hall on Friday evening, Nov. 12th. The program for the occasion was made up of the following: A series of social events during the winter months. These will be of a varied nature, the main idea being the promotion of a social movement along social, moral and intellectual lines.

We are informed by the committee that arrangements for the program are already well advanced and that a pleasant and profitable evening of entertainment is assured. All garterettes are asked to interest themselves in the program and to do their part in helping to make it a success.

Premier Meighen in Medicine Hat Nov. 10

Arrangements are now being made for the visit of Premier Meighen and his party to Medicine Hat next Wednesday, Nov. 10th. The premier and his party will be in the city for a few days, and will be accompanied by a large number of speakers and both will address two meetings.

These meetings will be held in the First Avenue Methodist church and the Empire theatre. Both meetings will commence simultaneously at 7:45 p.m. In the evening. The premier will speak first in the Methodist church while Mr. Collier is addressing the theatre meeting; then both speakers will exchange platforms and speak again. As the premier will not likely arrive at the theatre till after nine o'clock it is probable that those who are not able to get to the city by auto may get in on the evening train in time to hear him.

In the afternoon the ladies will hold a reception for Mrs. Meighen and Mrs. Collier in the Green. Entertainment at 5 o'clock. The premier is charged with having asked us to extend an invitation to the ladies of Redcliff and district to be present on that occasion.

At 5 o'clock in the morning the premier and his party will pay a visit to Redcliff and will be taken around to inspect the industries.

Must Have License To Sell Pelts and Hides

At the last session of the "legislature" the bill was introduced which now provides that all persons trafficking in the pelt of wild animals shall obtain a license before doing so. It is also provided that any person reporting or shipping out of the province the pelt of any wild animal without a license shall be liable to a fine of $100 or a term of six months in the penitentiary.

William Randolph Hearst, in his New York Journal, not only excels himself by printing a more than usual number of the "Globe" but also, by turning his attention to Canada.

AN INCIDENT OF THE REBEL-

BUSHED BY INDIANS—
COL. ALLAN MACDONALD—
TO THE RESCUE—FORT
QU'APPELLE AND REGINA
—A FENIAN SCARE.

Visitors to Fort Qu'Appelle taking the north shore road to Lebert, must have observed at a point just east of Telegraph Coulee the ruins of a large building. Most tenderfoot suppose for a moment that this is the last remnant of some ancient H. B. Co. post—or Chief Factor's home of the early nineteenth century.

Its erection dates back no longer than 1886. Compared with structures of that day it was palatial, the home of a prominent lawyer of the day and a member of the old N. W. Council.

Land Speculators

This gentleman held large town lot interests at the Fort, having a controlling ownership in practically all the area situated from what is now Company Avenue to the western end of Echo Lake. In 1882 he and his partner had made every effort to have the capital of the Territories located in the valley. As an inevitable result he had been elected, Governor Dewdney, who had determined that Regina—laid down on original maps as "the seat of government"—should be "the seat of government."

The feud between these two public men finally culminated in a banquet given in honor of the legislator by the people of the Fort, nearly all of whom lived with the honorable member.

While the banquet was given ostensibly in honor of their representative it was really staged for the purpose of giving him an opportunity to discuss before an audience of over two hundred men the shortcomings of the Governor and the weaknesses of his administration—more especially such acts of his as "were alleged, had been adverse to the best interests of the Fort."

Disastrous Effects

As an orator the speech was a decided success. In its effects it was disastrous.

The address received scant courtesy from the Fort and its residents. The attack on a Governor who, it was generally conceded, was a wise, judicious and far-seeing representative of the Crown.

The result of the banquet was a boomtown to the Fort and less than a week any reference to the occasion would bring forth the humiliating confession, "What damn fools we were."

A Royal Entertainer

Mr. Jackson entertained royally when the mansion, now in ruins was one of the best homes in the Territories. When, in costly dinners and champagne suppers followed each other in rapid succession throughout "the season."

Not unfrequently guests assembled from Regina, Calgary, Prince Albert and Winnipeg, including always a liberal quota of Mounted Police officers, their wives and daughters. It was, therefore, not surprising that many a time and oft there was "a sound of revelry by night" when the young and the fairy and the best behaved beneath this roof where hospitality was so lavishly dispensed.

As might be expected, the man who figured so prominently in the life of the west, was found to have an active part in the affairs of the community on the outbreak of the Riel rebellion in March, 1885. When Fort Osborne was established at the head of Telegraph Coulee, as a supply depot for a force of some two hundred soldiers was retained at Fort Qu'Appelle in an encampment east of Lebert, near the point at which the G.T.P. now drags itself on its way to the north beach land.

Autobiography of a Little Puppy

When I first opened my eyes I was a tiny, feeble puppy, and I know what they call a "puppy" means, but know that if I applies to something of a better class than what these queer human beings call a "mongrel." Just the same I don't want you to think I am a snob, because I have even had my short life, met many mongrels far more loving and big hearted than the most carefully guarded thoroughbreds.

What I saw first was a great stretch of land, there must have been miles of it, the cryo, and then it touched the sky. I have learned since that they call this the prairie, and I have been told by dogs who have travelled much more extensively than I have had the opportunity to do, that there are far countries where the high hills and trees and where you cannot see for so many miles away.

The first few weeks were very happy weeks. The people I lived with were pleasant, kind, and jolly. They had their own little house, and I knew that I was to be a lone one at first, but there were five brothers and sisters of mine, besides my mother and a big, black, glossy cat. It was the nicest cat I have ever seen and his disposition was just as nice as his appearance.

Part of puppy's tail had been frozen off during the previous winter, so it seems that in this country the winters must be terrible. I am sure that I look carefully after my own tail as I should not like to have it from one of those cold winds.

There was a baby in the little house, a dear little chap of six months. He loved everyone of us and when I saw him I would lift up to him to him. I would put out his hand, dimpled with laugh and when I saw the baby's little brother who was four years old, was very fond of me and would speak to me to be rough or unkind to us. It was very amusing to watch the old man and his dog and the little lady. They would run round and round the bushes. The cat would hide and the little fellow would be looking all over for her, and then puppy would dart from her hiding place, tag him gently.

clumps of small trees growing from the level prairie on either side of the trail, there sprang up a tall, thin, dark tree, called a poplar, and striped in the most ferocious colors, each armed with a long, sharp, pointed, gilded by a belt filled with cartridges. Each levelled rifle covered some portion of the invaders.

It would not be literally true to say of these white men that they were half-breed in their way, but none would claim that they were not more than surprised.

The interpreter, an exceptionally well-dressed and well-mannered man, of Indian blood, with a fair complexion, which the bravest Indian chief could not have improved upon, quietly delivered an explanation of this hostile attitude.

Ordered Off the Reserve

The Indians refused to pay out the soldiers would go back beyond the reserve line, and intimated that any move other than to right back face would create a situation unpleasant to all parties concerned.

It is not to be doubted, considering discretion the better part of valor, so the horses were promptly turned westward. The Indians were then met by Col. MacDonald, the Indian Agent, driving a pair of horses and a team of horses, and a steamship brochure on the dead run.

It transpired that some time after the Jackson party left camp the Colonel had driven a horse from Indian Head, and learning what was under way, lost no time in attempting to dissuade the party knowing that a trespass across the reserve would be resented.

The dispute over the return brought Whites and Reds together and poured oil on the fire. On June 13 the Colonel was again driven a horse from Indian Head and learning what was under way, lost no time in attempting to dissuade the party knowing that a trespass across the reserve would be resented.

A Fortunate Ending

A liberal distribution of military supplies, including tea, sugar, butter and lard, was followed by an Indian feast, where the sentiment was freely expressed that after all the Whites Man was not a bad fellow.

with her paw and race away again. He would give a shout of glee and chase after her. The cat too, was very particular about our toilet, and every morning would come and carefully "brush" us for us.

They one beautiful Sunday morning when the sun was shining and the weather was just right, we were just gambolling around the yard, baby and I, in the shade and the little lad was playing "tag" with the cat, when a lady and a gentleman came strolling along. They looked at us very pleasantly and my brother nudged me and said, "They are going to buy one of us," but I ran away under a box after a bone and pretended not to see the lady said, "Oh, I like that one, he looks so much fatter than the others; and I don't like this looking one; let's take the other." I felt sorry to see my gay companions especially the cat, the baby and the little boy, but as my brother had encouraged me, "You might do worse," just thought I might as well go along with the crowd and a little more talking about me and about my brothers I felt quite disposed to go to play with the arms, and he carried me away across the prairie.

My husband said, "Such nonsense to talk to the little fellow, he doesn't know what you are saying." I felt quite insulted and made a little yelp at this because I thought it is hard to hear things so devoid of intelligence that we cannot understand a single remark when it is addressed to us.

To make a long story short, we soon arrived at the little house which was near a good many other houses, although there was a good deal of space at the back yard where the little boy and I and a little boy and girl were so excited when they saw me they could hardly speak, but after a time I felt that they had plenty to say. They called me "Patsy" and I was very pleased to hear the name, and then a good sleep. I have been here several days now and am very well pleased with my new home. The little boy drives me around in his wagon which he thinks is great fun and I am sure to like it if it is very pleasant to me.

up high and he toted all over the place, while the little girl walks beside me saying "Nice doggie there's a nice Patsy, you're my little Patsy, aren't you?" To tell the honest truth, I am not in clover. The little boy today, got the surprise of his life today. I think it rather lonely and very attractive to small boys although the attraction is somewhat minute to me at present. Every day my little man pulled my tail and I barked, barked good and hard too, and he was so surprised that he called me "Patsy" and he said he would give me a good lecture for teasing the doggie, and he said he would let it go again. I won't because I love him and I don't want to be under the necessity of letting him know that he pulls my tail although I shall have to if he should as that is far too painful a proceeding to be borne patiently.

I think I have recounted all my adventures up to date, and should I have any more in the future will let you know.

Constables Dismissed
The Chief Secretary for Ireland, Sir Hanser Greywood, announced in the House of Commons recently that five constables had been dismissed from the Royal Irish Constabulary for various offences. He added that everybody was being dismissed who deviated in the least from the strictest discipline of the constabulary.

Charged With Murder
Allan Coleman brought to Montreal from New Westminster, B.C., where he was arrested, a charge of forgery was assigned recently on a charge of having murdered Constable Coleman on June 13 last. Coleman was taken to the New Westminster jail following the confession of Francis Coleman, a convict at Burnside Prison Farm.

The Magistrate: "Have you ever been cross-examined before?"
Prisoner: "Often, your worship. I'm a married man!"

CURRENT COMMENT

ON MATTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST TO DWELLERS
IN THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES, OF CANADA

A SERIES OF ARTICLES DEALING WITH VARIOUS WESTERN QUESTIONS

THE OIL LANDS OF ALBERTA

The great Canadian hinterland which lies to the north and west of Edmonton, has infinite possibilities. There are vast areas of excellent agricultural and pastoral land in which there is yet not a single settler. There is a wealth of timber, minerals, of game and fish that augurs well for the prosperity of the northern country, in the years to come. The Imperial Oil Company, one of the greatest corporations, not only in Canada, but in the world, has been active in prospecting for oil in the region in question. Recently news has come from the north that they have struck a mighty gusher near the Mackenzie river. Previously there was ample evidence of the presence of oil and it was only quite recently that a gusher was struck. The reports of geologists and others seem to indicate that the oil fields of the Mackenzie river basin as a great and prominent oil field and there is now little doubt that that region will become the centre of great activity and that lines of railway will be built into it. Mountains of iron ore are also reported in the same region and it may not be long until the wild north land, hitherto for countless centuries almost time began but dormant in its stillness and solitude, will hum with the wheels of industrial activity. Truly Canada is a wonderful country and as yet only a small title of its resources have been known or exploited.

QUALITY BREEDING.

The Saskatchewan Government, or at least the agricultural department of it, are to be congratulated on following the example of Alberta in searching the country for the best possible sire to be used in improving the breed of horses throughout the province.

Duncan Marshall, the Alberta Minister of Agriculture, has done splendid work in this direction. He has sent committees of experienced stockmen to Europe to procure the best Percheron and Clydesdale stallion obtainable. He has also sent officials of his department to the States to secure thoroughbred sires of the best breeds and dairymaid breed. Some work in this direction has begun in Saskatchewan, but it has not been pursued as vigorously as in Alberta. A few days ago a delegation consisting of an official of the department and two well known stockmen were despatched to Britain to obtain the best Clydesdale stallion procurable for the use of the province. This is encouraging, but there is still much to be done along similar lines. Our dairy herds need toning up. There are too many Scotch Holsteins in the country and too few of the slightly Ayrshire, or graceful Jersey.

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

There is no institution that fills the same place in the life of any community as the weekly newspaper. It is usually in sympathy with the aims and objects of the people of the district and it expresses them in a way intelligible to all. It advocates measures that affect the interests of the people and stimulates progress and development. It chronicles briefly matters of world wide interest and tells of the goings and comings of the whole neighborhood. It is an unflinching barometer of local conditions. There is no printed sheet that is read with greater avidity. It is not skinned for the sake of its headlines as are the daily papers. It is read, page by page, and line by line. In every farm house and store its contents are discussed and in fact, it is all place where people forget their. The weekly newspaper gives a service and provides an interest the value of which is far in excess of the trivial price usually charged as subscription.

The weekly paper has, in recent years, been striving with many difficulties. Efficient help has been hard to get. The scale of printers' wages has been constantly rising. Good men are attracted to the cities by the high rate of pay offered there and often the local editor has to work double shift himself at the case to get his paper out. The most serious disability, however, under which his labors have been the mounting price of news print, the wasteful depletion of the forests on the American side of the line has made a tremendous demand for the Canadian pulpmold of which paper is manufactured. The demand upon the Canadian mill has been enormous and the price of the newspaper has become very great. The weekly publisher, therefore, finds that it costs him several times as much to produce his paper as it did a few years ago. It is not only the few men, however, who does not take it out of the consumer as the price of paper increases. This does not seem equitable. He is performing one of the most useful functions in the community and it does not seem fair that he should do it for little or no remuneration. If the weekly newspaper is to continue to retain its place in the scheme of things there is no reason why its subscribers should not realize the conditions and pay an adequate subscription.

THE LUXURY TAX

When one of the Cabinet Ministers was in a western city recently he was asked by a retail merchant the object of the luxury tax. The merchant added that it had been asserted to him that the luxury tax had been placed on a certain class of goods in the interests of high protection as it would show the people what they might expect in the way of direct taxation should their revenue tariff be abandoned.

The minister replied very clearly and succinctly that the luxury tax had not been imposed. The idea of raising revenue from it. It was designed to curb the extravagant habits into which the people had fallen. It was, however, not a fixed principle of taxation, only a temporary expedient, in deciding upon which the Government had not been actuated by a consideration of raising revenue.

Recruiting for R.N.W.M.P. After South African War

DEPLETION OF THE N.W.M.P. RANKS—TRAINING OF NEW RECRUITS—AN INTERESTING INCIDENT

During the South African war the ranks of the N.W.M.P. had been steadily depleted. Almost all the officers and men volunteered for active service and numbers of them distinguished themselves overseas. This was a serious drain upon the personnel of the force. It meant that a great deal of recruiting had to be done and for a short period there were many numbers of the force in each division who had to be taught their duties. A number of splendid young men in the Maritime provinces were enlisted to learn not only their duties but to become familiar with the western country.

A Cow Town

An instance which came under my personal observation at Fort McLeod in 1900 illustrated this condition. Fort McLeod at that time was a typical cow town. The cattle industry was still flourishing. A string of cow ponies, with sagging heads and outflung lines might be seen at any hour of the day patiently waiting for their masters outside the Queen's Hotel or the McLeod House; freighters wagons, drawn by many spans of mules or horses, plodded in from the Missouri country covered with the dust of a hundred miles. The weather boarded sidewalks rang to the spurs of cowboys and range riders with the easy creak of the cattle country came and went in clouds of dust.

There was a cowboy named Joe Gallagher, whose people had a small ranch some distance down the Old Man river when he got some whiskey inside him liked to play at being a bad man. One day after a considerable session of beer at the Queen's hotel he created quite a disturbance in the streets. The N.W.M.P. in charge of the town station was a fat, rather good-natured Irishman named Dooley, and he undertook to arrest him. Gallagher was taken by surprise and submitted quietly enough at first, but as Dooley was leading him to the police station Gallagher suddenly broke loose and ran across the street and leaped upon a cow pony that was standing by the sidewalk and galloped off. Dooley, went to the police station to telephone to the barracks about half a mile away, but before he had entered the building Gallagher came back at a dead gallop swinging a lariat around his head. The policeman had just time to duck into the building as the rope was cast at him. The noise just missed catching him, and jerked from his head the lousy little forage cap worn by the police at that time. Gallagher circled around the building and darted Dooley to come out and be roped. Dooley promptly phoned to the barracks for assistance, and in a few minutes two mounted policemen were seen galloping to the scene. They were both boys from the east who were not, as yet very experienced horsemen and as their bronchos swung round the corners, they pulled their leathers to steady them in their seats.

A Deadly Weapon

Gallagher did not wait for them but advanced to meet them on the run. His rope went true and he pulled the landing constable off his horse by the neck and he fell on a pile of stones with a tremendous thud. Gallagher proceeded to drag him but the policeman leaped to his feet and started to run after the cowboy in a frantic effort to prevent him, tightening the rope. I don't think I ever saw a man work up such speed; despite jackboots and spurs he succeeded in getting some slack into the rope and casting it off his neck. Gallagher coiled up his lariat and then jerked the other policeman off his horse in a similar manner.

A Bit of The Old West

Thoroughly exasperated, Dooley now appeared on the scene with a large revolver and opened fire on Gallagher without effect. Some more police recruits put in an appearance and for a time a regular little battle went on in the streets of McLeod. Every once in a while Gallagher would pull them off their horse by the rope. He was, by far, the better rider and they responded by shooting at him. They were not very good shots however, and the bullets did no more damage than to go spluttering on the weather boarded buildings. At this stage of the proceedings, Superintendent Deane of the police arrived in Leithbridge and at once had the incident brought to a close. As the police retired, Gallagher stood in his stirrups, snatched his hat and shouted, "Wait until I get a gun and I will teach youse redcoats how to ride!" He galloped down the street, plunged his horse into the river, swam across and disappeared in the wake of a large island. When he got good and sober he gave himself up. He was ably defended and, I think, got off with a heavy fine.

The Last of Playing Bad Man

Gallagher, however, liked to play the bad man when he felt drunk and this was his undoing. Some time afterwards he was cutting up at one of the little towns on the Calgary-McLeod Branch and he was taken in charge by a real old timer of the Mounted Police. He was kept in durance vile at the police station until nearly sober, then made a break for liberty. As he ran down the street, the sergeant in charge of the station took a rifle and called out very composedly, "You had better stop Gallagher, or I will have to stop you." Gallagher shouted defiantly and the policeman dropped him with a bullet in the shoulder. This effectively ended his career as a bad man and if I am not mistaken resulted in the amputation of his arm.

Miss H. K. Barclay, B.A., Admitted To Alberta Bar

The first Edmonton resident lady law student in the person of Miss Helena K. W. Barclay, B.A., was admitted to the Alberta bar, supreme court Tuesday morning, and was vested with all the rights and privileges to practice. Finally, Ironton, and finally, when her family moved to Edmonton, she completed her course in the University of Alberta with the degree of bachelor of arts. Her course in law was shortened two years by the fact that she had already taken the law in the degree. Miss Barclay will in all probability enter into partnership with her father.

Readers will recall, in connection with the admission of lady members of the Alberta bar, that Mrs. Chester Gainer, formerly Miss Ruby Clements, was the first woman to be admitted to the practice of law in the province. She was at the time a resident of Vegreville so that Miss Barclay is the first Edmonton lady to be admitted to the bar.

Miss Barclay, who completed her course in law in the office of Fairfax, McKay & Howson, was introduced to the court by Frank Ford, K.C., chairman of the bar, who referred to the fact that the young lady lawyer was the daughter of L. T. Barclay, who, is a member in long standing of the legal profession, having practiced both in Ontario and Alberta. He spoke in appreciation of the young lady's course in law, which she had completed with a high standing.

Mr. Justice Walsh who was on the bench was in a very gracious mood, and expressed his great pleasure in being privileged to welcome Miss Barclay to the bar. He spoke at greater length than usual and referred to his long acquaintance with the family (father, and also expressed the hope that she would very often appear in court to plead cases. His welcome to Miss Barclay was noticeably hearty and warm.

The new woman lawyer was born in Whittby, Ont., and during her university course attended Victoria College.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

A TALE OF EVERYDAY PEOPLE AND THEIR HUMAN EXPERIENCES
SOME OF THE SORROWS WHICH THE WAR
IMPOSED ON A WAITING WOMAN

Albert's funeral is all over. Philip and I are all alone. They took the body home for burial in the family burial place and we accompanied it. My heart is very heavy and I cannot describe the terrible sense of loss and loneliness that is mine. Albert has grown to be a part of me, can even now hardly realize what life will mean without him, and the more I think of his sweetness of disposition, his kindness and his care for us, the more I realize how unworthy I was of his great love and trust, but I continually thank God that the shadow of my wavering heart never rested upon him and unto the end he thought me true.

Philip and I are at home again with mother. Life is very much the same as it was during the war, except that I feel such a sense of loss and loneliness. Dick is slowly recovering from his illness. I have not seen him yet and I dread his ordeal. I do not want to see him, not for a long time. He is too closely intertwined in my mind with the thoughts of Albert. I feel as though I were dylolay. Sometimes I think I will go away and work. Albert left us fairly well provided for, but I must do something to supplement our income and also to keep my mind busy. I cannot bear to see Philip with mother while I go away and yet I cannot take him with me and work, so for the last few weeks I have been letting things drift.

The problem has been solved. My aunt who lives on a farm in Massachusetts, has written inviting Philip and me to visit her. Mother urges us to go as she says she feels alarmed at my apathy and thinks I am going. I can imagine stin's old house, just the kind of place in which one may refresh their tired, faded minds and redeem the dreary hours. The journey through the State of Maine is like a dream of loveliness, especially after the somewhat bare flatness of the prairie and I am enjoying it to the full. Philip, too, is delighted as he gazes out at the wooded loveliness, the shimmering lakes and the peaceful meadow land. Once or twice he looked up at the blue of the sky and turned to me so seriously saying, "Daddy is up there, isn't he Mummy?"

I nodded, "yes" to him and he went on, "And Daddy sees us doesn't he?" I again assented, and then the little fellow seemed to put it out of his mind as he looked at the beautiful scenery, but just the same I know the little mind is puzzling as to where Daddy, who was always so loving and so full of care for him has really gone and why he has left.

I Had never seen my aunt, before but when we met us in the rubber-tired buggy which looked so quaint after all the automobiles we had seen seemed to seeing in the west, I felt a great sense of rest and peace. She was such a sweet friend and so kindly discerning in my eyes and when she looked at me tenderly and kissed me she murmured, "My dear child, you have grown so much since I last saw you into my eyes for almost the first time since Albert died. We did not say much as we jogged along the winding road, but I did not need to say much because I knew that this older woman had an understanding heart and that I had come to a place of real rest. My impression was doubly confirmed when through an avenue of old trees, away gently in the soft breeze, of a perfect day, I glimpsed a dear old fashioned house which spoke to me of peace and contentment.

War Ended When Treaties Signed

THE SEEING EYE.

Principal Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College, thus delivers himself in the Agricultural Gazette of Canada: "The teachers who hope to take a right place in the life of the country school are not at all ignorant of the seeing eye and the understanding hand for persons and things rural. The usual, popular, melodrama, comic supplement, moving picture conception of the farmer and of country people must be forgotten. It is essentially and perniciously false. The farmer is something of a humorist, and takes delight in deceiving the simple-minded by a somewhat unfinished exterior. The city-bred person makes the fatal mistake of judging by outside appearances. To the city-trained eye there are two classes of persons, one wearing overalls and the other wearing white collars. The former class work with their hands. The latter class work with their brains. That the superficial judgment, which ignores the fact that there is a very great deal of clear, hard thinking done today by the man wearing overalls. At any rate, the farmer belongs to both classes. The more he understands of those discoveries, which it is the business of the agricultural college to make, the more he absorbs the teaching which it is the business of the college to spread abroad, the better farmer will he be."

FUR FARMING.

An unique exhibition under the immediate management of the Commission of Conservation of Canada, will be held in Montreal on November 24th, 25th and 26th. It will be the first international exhibition of ranch-bred live silver foxes. Fur farming is rapidly becoming a scientific branch of animal husbandry and, although little more than a decade old, is one of Canada's most flourishing infant industries.

A healthy growth of the industry should do much to check the rapid depletion of wild fur-bearing animals and to steady unstable conditions in the large fur markets.

Several complaints have been registered lately about the bad habits some people have formed of allowing their stock to run at large. It should be noted that because the garden season is over cattle can do no damage. They can, and very serious damage at that. At this season of the year the tender shrubs, young trees and green lawns make a very appetizing bite for undisciplined stock. In a very few minutes they can spoil the work of a whole season. This is a very discouraging for any who are trying to improve the appearance of their homes. The habit should be stopped and we have the assurance of the poundkeeper that he is going to get after these cattle at once. Owing to the present cost of feed pound fees are high these days.

As will be seen by an advertisement in this issue the town will hold a tax sale in Redcliff next Friday, Nov. 12th. At this sale all the property in town which is in arrears for taxes will be sold by auction. Those who own property so listed should give their matter their careful attention and see that it is redeemed if at all possible. There is only one way to redeem it now and that is by paying the taxes before the hour for starting the sale arrives. There is no doubt that among the properties so listed are some well worth protecting from an investment and speculative standpoint. Neither is there any doubt that some of it will be purchased by those who have an eye to the future.

The decision of the Civic Improvement League to turn over the monies which they have on hand to the Boy Scouts executive is one which we have no doubt will meet with the approval of all members and supporters of the League. This money was accumulated for the purpose of providing amusement for the school pupils, the principal object being to secure a skating rink. In handing it over to the Scout executive with the request accompanying it there is no doubt that an attempt will be made in this direction this winter. This action is another evidence of the sentiment which is behind the Scout movement.

Should cows be milked twice or three times a day? This is a question which agricultural colleges throughout the country are now trying to solve. If it is to be decided that they are to be milked three times the doctors should get busy and discover a preventive for milking paralysis.

Halifax to Vancouver
In Forty Hours

With the route marked out every 50 miles and with wireless control in place there would be nothing to prevent a regular fifty hour air service between Halifax and Vancouver, according to General A. K. Tyle, the air commander, who reached Ottawa on his return from the Trans-Canada flight. General Tyle flew from Winnipeg to Vancouver in 24 hours and during the recent flight and returned to Ottawa improved with the possibilities of developing a commercial cross country service.

During the past week four hundred tons containing fifty thousand head of Alberta cattle left Alberta for the Chicago market. The high rate of exchange is all to the advantage of Alberta ranchers and shippers and offsets the high freight charges over the long route. Further large shipments are expected shortly.

Vancouver Island's Famous Gardens

A View of Part of the Bouchard Gardens 12 Miles From Victoria, B.C.

Some few years ago at the head of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, on the island of Vancouver, a garden was laid out on a site which was formerly a meadow. The garden is now a famous one, and is known as the Bouchard Gardens. The garden is situated on a hillside, and is a beautiful one, with many fine plants and flowers. The garden is a masterpiece of landscaping, and is a great attraction for visitors to the island. The garden is a testament to the skill and artistry of the Bouchard family, who have spent many years in creating this beautiful garden. The garden is a great place to visit, and is a must-see for anyone who is interested in gardens and landscaping. The garden is a beautiful one, and is a great attraction for visitors to the island. France Dislikes

Britain's Action

Assertion is made by the French government in its reply to the British note announcing Great Britain had decided to renounce the right to confiscate German property in the United Kingdom that the paragraph of the Versailles treaty which Great Britain is prepared to waive, is an integral part of the convention, states the Petit Parisien. The government holds, therefore, that this or any other clause of the treaty cannot be revised without a preliminary agreement between all the signatories of the pact.

The note, the newspaper says, is couched in extremely courteous but firm language, and expresses the hope that an agreement between the nations on the subject may soon be reached.

Dry Campaign in India Postponed

A prohibition campaign in India, being planned by "Pussyfoot" Jenson, has for the time being been called off. "Pussyfoot" had reservations made for selling next week, but cancelled them. He admitted the change was due to instructions from the United States, but said he expected to go there later. I understand the interests backing the dry campaign now planned for India and Ireland, have decided, in view of the unrest prevailing in both countries, that any prohibition agitation might further complicate the problems of the government, and therefore they will postpone the campaign until the present unrest has subsided. The government itself, it is understood, has suggested unofficially to persons close to "Pussyfoot" that an extension of his activity to these countries might embarrass it and be unpleasant.

GARMENT WORKERS

TO HAVE WAGES CUT.
Upward of 30,000 garment workers in Montreal face the prospect of being out of work this winter, unless they agree to accept a reduction of 30 per cent. in wages. If they refuse this proposition all the factories in Montreal will be closed by November 1st, according to Mr. Meis of the Fish Clothing Company. Mr. Morris was not prepared to say there would be a very material reduction in the retail selling price of clothes in the immediate future.

Canadian Persian Lamb

(1) A Karakul flock gathered for inspection. (2) Karakul sheep and lambs.

The aggressive and enterprising spirit of the Canadian farmer coupled with the diversity of climates to be found throughout the Dominion result in a continual branching out into new lines of agricultural activity. A recent introduction which has rapidly taken vigorous hold and will probably assume important proportions developments into a commercial industry of magnitude, is the breeding of Karakul sheep, the animal whose young produce the fur variety known as Persian lamb, Astrakhan, and Karakul. This breed is but little known on the American continent although interesting experiments have been made with this breed at Pennant, New Brunswick, and in P. Lane Edward Island. The breed of the Karakul sheep is on the vast sandy deserts of Bokara, which are largely inundated in the spring by the river Karakul, and are now being developed by the government of winter's snow in the Altai Mountains. Many sheep-rearers are now in this region, the Karakul sheep of which form the favored food of the sheep in the summer, whilst their berries supply winter forage. For the supply of fur, the lambs are killed within three days from birth when the wool is curly, a property it maintains afterwards in the most humid atmosphere. If the animal is permitted to live, the growth gradually becomes straight, losing every vestige of flexure at maturity.

In the year 1912 the Karakul sheep was first introduced into the United States direct from Bokara, and in the following year small herds were established in Alberta and British Columbia. Here they have thrived and propagated successfully and give every indication of making the industry in the west permanently profitable.

Recently, F. H. Dawley, an inspector of the United States Bureau of Husbandry for New York, who has been rearing a herd of 40 animals at Calgary, Alberta, located land in the Kamloops district of British Columbia, on which he proposes establishing a similar ranch. He believes the district to be particularly adapted to the raising of Karakul sheep on account of its elevation, climate and winter conditions closely approximating the animals' native Bokara in Turkestan. Previous to the war attempts were made to acclimatize Karakul sheep in Belgium and Northern Germany, with some success. The climate of certain sections of Canada, however, provides more ideal conditions, and indications are that the foundation has been laid in the Dominion for a very large in the livestock industry which should prove a very profitable line to Canadian farmers.

Before the war almost the entire Karakul crop from Bokara known as Persian lamb or Astrakhan, was traded and dyed at London, where two houses alone received 150,000 skins valued at about $1,000,000 (at pre-war prices). A full-blooded Karakul sheep is worth about $1,000. Three-fourths blooded, $800; half-blooded, $150 to $200. Skins at the present time range from $10 to $100 each.

Women's Corner

A FEW RAMBLING REMARKS
BY A PRAIRIE WOMAN

Some time ago I heard about a young girl, whose mother had been so aggravated by finding that her daughter had been living a double life under her very roof, as it were, that she struck her across the back with a stick. Now the young woman is twenty-one. She had had every advantage of present day education and culture as it is to be obtained from a young ladies' college; her mother is an intelligent woman, the wife of a public man, and in their home there has been every opportunity for the development of culture and good taste, so you will understand that this was no mere low class family matter, and you will understand also that the aggravation given to the mother must have been of the most heinous kind. It was, but still there was no excuse for her action. A young woman's mind and character are pretty well defined when she comes to the age of twenty-one years and no physical chastisement will help her much then, rather the reverse.

The cause of the trouble was that the mother had discovered a letter which the girl had written to a chum, the contents of which had been a startling illumination to the mother, as to the state of her daughter's mind and character. With tears in her eyes she said, "I never dreamed you had such ideas in your mind, much less did I think of your putting them on paper." The girl was utterly unashamed and assumed such an irritating, impudent manner, as to lead to the unfortunate culmination. I learned afterwards that that was the first time that mother had ever laid a finger on her daughter. It seems that for years she had been going on to a blind paradise, imagining her to be an example of pure-minded and innocent young girlhood, but to awake to the saddening discovery that the girl's thoughts and ideas were impure and vile.

Sad daughter—sadder mother! This story, it seems to me, is but one of many tragedies in this present age. The remedy? The most efficacious remedy, and the only one which will materially solve such a problem is to be found in the mothers themselves. Why do they allow their daughters to grow so far away from them that they never dream that they can have such ideas in their heads. If they but lived in close sympathy with the young life

CHILDREN'S CORNER

The Children of Today Are the Parents of Tomorrow. In Years to Come the "Dilemma of Choice" Will Be in Their Hands.

My dear Boys and Girls—I suppose many of you have been celebrating Halloween. On this page I am giving you some ideas as to what may be done to make it a more interesting and profitable time. It is much too late at twenty-one to uproot the ugly weeds of morbid thought if they have been allowed to grip hold of the tender soil. The work of preparing the mind and strengthening the character should have been begun when she toddled and lapsed, when her mother said, "Be a good girl, like your mother said, and when her innocent eyes were clear and guileless.

What a refreshing thing just now is a wholesome, clear-eyed, finely minded, healthy, self-reliant, and of existence seems to provide so many semi-invaluable. How many do we meet who enjoy perfect health, well poised nerves, and a continually even, cheerful disposition. Not many, and if we are not, we are not "remarkably strong." Surely good health is our heritage, not frazzled nerves and organs, and to be performed ed they seem to take it as a matter of course, while to the ordinary thinking person it is a catastrophe that so many who must be the future mothers of the country are apparently so unfitted to take up their responsibilities. If growing girls only realized how necessary it was for them to conserve their vitality by eating good plain food, not highly seasoned restaurant dishes at midnight, and to get plenty of refreshing sleep in the days when they are building up energy for the trials and taxation of strength.

bound to come to them in later years and which will assuredly bring them into life-long invalidism. If they are not prepared, they would avoid late hours and unnatural food as they would the plague.

people do to make Halloween a jolly, bright affair. I remember when I was a little girl, Halloween seemed a very gay festival to me. We had apples strung around the kitchen, and apples hanging from strings and then a big tub into which we used to duck for apples, but there I suppose you know all about it, but I wonder if you all know what an old, old festival Halloween really is. The old Romans held in honor of Pomona, the goddess of fruit trees. In Britain the Druids celebrated a festival at the same time in honor of the sun god and in thanksgiving for harvest and these two festivals seem to have become one in the British mind. Then when the people became Christians, the wise old church fathers let them keep their feast, but gave it new associations by holding it in memory of lost souls. Thus it came to be called "All-Hallow's Eve." The name comes from an old English word halve, or half, and the old.

Many superstitions grew around this festival of All-Hallow's Eve, and some of these on this one night spirits of the departed were allowed to visit their homes, and in many parts of the old countries food was left and the hearth was swept, before the villagers went to bed. Although these old superstitions have lost their meaning to us who are more enlightened, we still keep some of the quaint old customs.

I must tell you that the prize winner for the October letter writing competition was Viola Agnes DeGraft, Enkine, Alta. I am printing another letter this week which I am sure you will enjoy reading. Next month we will have a new kind of competition.

With much love to you all, and hoping you will be enjoying this delightful fall weather and having very many merry times before winter sets in. I am ever, Affectionately,

AUNT BETTY.

Letter to Aunt Betty

Trossachs, Sask., Oct. 13, 1920.

Dearest Aunt Betty, I am a girl fifteen years old, and I have passed grade eight. I received your letter in the Children's Corner, and I thought it very interesting. Her idea of having the boys and girls make up stories and send them to the Children's Corner, is a very nice one. I have several stories that I wrote this I would be glad to send in. Perhaps we could have story poems, or other kinds of contests. What do you say, Aunt Betty?

Violin said that she thinks that spring is the best part of the year. I do not think so. My favorite season is autumn. The autumn air is so crisp and refreshing. The fallen leaves give it a fresh tang that I love. I feel so much like putting on a tan and sweater, and going off for a long tramp. It is the only season in which I never get tired of walking. Autumn is also the month of out-picking parties, bon fires, and gay, festive Hallowe'en. In autumn you are reminded of the poem:

See the kitten on the wall
Sporting with the leaves that fall.
Withered leaves, one and two
From the lofty eld tree.

It is a very pretty poem, but I do not remember it all. The only fault with autumn, I think, is that it is too short.

I have not so many brothers or sisters as Viola, for I have only

PERFECTLY LEGAL WILL

You can make one in your own home without expense. On three small pieces of paper write the words "blonde," "brunette," and "medium," and attach these papers to the ends of the little quills. To make the test hold up the feathers by their tips and with a puff of breath send them flying towards the table. The one that falls nearest to you tells the complexion of your true love. The test should be made three times to make the prophecy quite sure.

Apple Paring

Peel an apple without breaking the skin, swing the paring around your head three times and let it fall to four over the left shoulder. The letter formed as it falls to the ground gives the name of your future spouse.

UNCLE JIM'S JUMBLED JINGLES

Grown-ups don't know everything after all, and what I am going to tell you will show you that this is true. Uncle Jim came over to the house one day last week, and went up to the nursery to see the children. Mother wanted to show Uncle Jim how clever the children were and she asked them to say any nursery rhymes. Little Jim said, "The cat sat on the mat, and the dog barked at the cat, and the pig went to the market in Chicago and sugar is now retailing at eight cents per pound."

THE WEEK'S NEWS IN TERSE TERMS

Prarie Provinces Go Dry

The three prairie provinces, also Nova Scotia, have voted to stop the importation of intoxicating liquors. Saskatchewan's majority was estimated at nearly 10,000. The majority in Nova Scotia of "dry" over "wet" was 40,000.

Hunger Striker Dead

Joseph Murphy, one of the hunger strikers in Cork Jail died some days ago. He was twenty-five years old and unmarried. Murphy was a member of the Irish volunteers and was well known as an athlete.

The appraisal of the estate of Andrew Carnegie has recently been completed, and shows a net fortune of $23,247,161 which is even less than the estimate of Mr. Carnegie's fortune (between twenty-five and thirty millions) made at the time of his death.

Proposed Barring Sugar

It is understood that the Government has arrived at a partial solution of the sugar refiners' troubles which involves action by the customs department. It is said that the department of adjudicating "dumping" will have regard not for the ordinary market prices of sugar in the United States, but for the price set by the refiners group of that country, a price which is from two to four cents higher than the world price. This interesting device will prohibit the entry of "cheap" United States sugar almost as efficaciously as the action of the Board of Commerce would had it been allowed to stand.

Canadian Whiskey Shipped Into Spokane

"So plentiful is the local supply of high grade Canadian whisky" that the price will be reduced to $7.50 a quart, or only $2.50 a quart above the "prohibition" price, declared one of the Detectives, Martin J. Burns, in a newspaper interview today. He said that although Canadian whisky is being received here by the railroad, the police are powerless to stop the traffic.

McNeil Acquitted

After three hours deliberation at Welland, Ontario, the jury acquitted David McNeil of the murder of the ten-year-old Margaret Boucock of Thorold, on July 13, last. As the words "not guilty" fell from the lips of Foreman Neufeld, a demonstration of approval was started, which brought from Mr. Justice Kelly a strong rebuke. Then the nerve of the accused broke down and he sank into his chair and wept.

McNeil was taken in charge by Inspector Reynolds of the Dominion Immigration Department, and will be held for deportation. He is wanted for robbery and other charges.

Exports of Butter Cease

There is now practically no export of butter from Canada and wholesale butter merchants in Montreal are exercised over the position. Canada produces more butter than she can consume, it is claimed and she must export the balance. Some butter has been exported to European countries it appears, but Canada's big customer is Great Britain, and the price set by the British Government is considerably too low for merchants unless they are willing to take a heavy loss. The rate of exchange is the main factor that prevents sale, but in addition there is speculation, which it is claimed has caused merchants to lay in heavy stocks at unduly high prices.

Policemen Search for Body

Word has reached R.C.M.P. headquarters in Ottawa that Sgt. J. E. F. Wright, and Constable Butler, who sailed from Halifax on the ship Governor, went to the Customs house in August. Sgt. Wright reached Port Burwell, which is in the Hudson Straits, on September 24, after his sailing had been delayed by a strike at Halifax. The R.C.M.P. detachment will make patrols of the surrounding territory, and also state the customs officials in their work of establishing a customs' port at Burwell.

Pope Appeals For Financial Aid

As a result of the war the chief sources of the Vatican's income, namely, the papal states of Rome, Naples, Sicily and the Papal States of the Adriatic, have been impoverished. Pope Benedict was obliged to appeal to Spain, Latin America and the United States.

The Italian Journal states that Mr. Benvenuto Carvini, under secretary of state at the Vatican, went to the United States to attend the golden jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons. A report was circulated that he had gone with the object of negotiating a loan of $1,000,000 for the Holy See. The actual object was to collect $1,000,000 from the United States Catholics.

Twins the Fashion

According to the local bureau of vital statistics, one baby out of every fifty born in Akron, is a twin. In 1919, 46 pairs of twins were born there. This year's new record is promised, the figure to date being forty-one pairs. The town is short on triplets, but yields to none other in the matter of twins.

Children Replace Soldiers

The old English hospital camp at Comrie, near Exeter, which originally cost several hundred thousand dollars has been taken over by the French Government and opened as a recreational camp for underfed French children from the devastated regions. There are now installed at Comrie 6,000 little girls ranging from six to fifteen years of age. After July 15 will come the turn of 6,000 boys.

Year in Jails

John Salomon of Quonset was sentenced to one year with hard labor for stealing wheat from the granary of J. J. Moore of Ashtabula. Salomon was a farm hand employed by Moore and the latter became suspicious when he noticed that his wheat was diminishing. Noticing fresh wheel tracks he traced them to town and the provincial police traced the missing wheat to Salomon's possession.

Kills Self While Bride Waits

Dr. B. J. Miller, aged forty, of Negaunee, Michigan, was called to come downstairs where friends were waiting to witness his wedding, which to take place, recently. He replied, "I'll be ready in a minute," then he killed himself with a shotgun. Miss Connors, his fiancée and other members of the wedding party were waiting on Dr. Miller to appear. No reason for the suicide is known.

$60,000 For Attending King

Professor Willard Van Dyke called to Athens from Paris to attend King Alexander, has been given a fee of $60,000 by the Greek Government.

Alberta Votes "Dry"

Returned squatted at the provincial prohibition headquarters at Edmonton indicate that the voters of Alberta have decided by a majority estimated at 15,000 in favor of prohibition.

No Home

An old man who is a resident of Ontario, has been endeavoring to obtain entrance into the House of Refuge or the House for the Friendless, and alleges that his relatives will not provide a home for him. On investigating his position for a place of rest, it was learned that he has approximately $1,500 in a local bank. His request for admission into either of the above institutions was refused.

Old Resident Dead

Mary Ann Neff, widow of the late J. R. Neff, of Moosemin, died recently at the age of seventy-four years. The deceased lady was well known, and highly respected throughout the entire district, having been a resident since the early settlement days. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. Pennington of Moosemin. Her husband and son died several years ago.

Julia Arthur Likely to Return to Stage

Some twenty years ago Julia Arthur was one of the most notable figures of the American stage, and wife of Benjamin Pierce Cheney, once voted as one of Boston's wealthiest men. She is tired of sudden reverses in her husband's business, she feels it necessary to return to the stage, and expects to do so this fall.

Guard at Britain Prison

The police guard at Britain prison has been increased. The total number of the guard there is unknown, as most of the troops are kept under cover, but there is a considerable garrison inside the gates.

Sinn Feiners who arrived from Cork and other parts of Ireland for the funeral services, went to Britain prison in little parties throughout the day to see where the Lord Mayor had died.

Drayton to Meet Financiers

Mr. Henry Drayton, minister of finance, has expressed a desire to meet the various financial groups of Toronto to discuss various current financial topics. A meeting has been called to be held on Monday, October 25, on the floor of the Toronto Stock Exchange, to which stock brokers, members of the Bond Dealers' and Bankers' Association, and other life and loan companies have been invited.

Intimate Little Tales

SOME EXPERIENCES OF HUMAN INTEREST UNDERGONE IN EVERY-DAY LIFE BY EVERY-DAY PEOPLE

The Grahams had lived in London all their lives. They were hard-working, industrious people and they had four children. They had never wanted for the necessities of life and indeed had had a good share of the luxuries as well, because Mr. Graham was fairly prosperous in his business of furniture dealer and repairer. Then, gradually at first, business began to get dull and one day the Grahams realized that their business had gone and that ruin stared them in the face. What should they do? There were several discussions on the subject and no one knows exactly how it came about, but it was at last decided that the boys and their father should go to Canada, and the girls should wait for a time until some kind of a shelter was prepared for them.

Only those who have "gone through the same experience can imagine what a terrible uprooting and upheaval this great change meant in the hitherto comfortable and conservative life of the Grahams. They had never been separated in their lives and this launching out seemed to upset all their preconceived ideas. The father was much concerned for his wife, who had been sheltered all her life, and the girls, young women of sixteen, seventeen, and it was with many a choked back sob, and many a pathetically cheerful little smile

Go-Between For Bolsheviks

Sensational charges were made in Bow Street Police Court, recently against a man of unknown nationality who, the Government attorney declared, had been acting between revolutionary circles in England and the Russian revolutionists. In one letter from Sylvia Pankhurst to Lenin she wrote: "The situation is most acute; not ready for revolution yet."

which deceived no one, that they said "good-bye."

Mr. Graham was a man who had passed middle life and it takes great courage and energy to start out on a new career at that age, especially when there is the knowledge of disappointment and failure behind, but he was made of good stuff and although the father and sons who landed at Quebec were very lonesome and homesick, they gritted their teeth and determined to "make good" for the sake of those at home.

This is a pleasant story I have to tell. Success followed their efforts, and while everything they touched in this "Promised Land" did not turn to gold, yet for all their labor they received fair rewards. The two sons, one fourteen and the other twenty-one, soon found jobs and Mr. Graham, like the gritty Briton that he was, went to work in a cabinet maker's shop. They all worked like Trojans and in three weeks they rented a little house in the small town, in which they had settled. The house was in poor repair and needed cleaning and decorating, but this did not daunt them. Mr. Graham and the boys. Every evening, after a hard day's work they were at the little house scrubbing, cleaning, papering and decorating. In the meantime, in England, a woman and two daughters were waiting anxiously for the bulletins which came from over the sea. In one of the letters which they wrote to their men folks they said, "Do not worry that we shall mind roughing it, because we expect that and are prepared to do our share." As they, who were across the ocean looked at the little house which was growing so sweet and clean under their loving hands, they smiled but did not tell the secret which they were treasuring so carefully.

Then one day three tired women arrived. A delighted father and two sons were at the station and tears of joy were mingled with the greetings of reunion. "You will not mind roughing it a bit will you mother?" asked the eldest son shyly as he took her bag away from her.

"No dear," she replied, "I am too glad to think we are all together again to mind anything."

"We did the best we could, but of course it is not the same as home."

"Of course not Jim," said one of the girls, "we don't expect it and we don't mind, so, don't worry."

At last the cab reached the little house where the window panes shone with much polishing and at which there hung neat, white curtains. In the large window at the front there were two or three geraniums in full flower at which the women gazed in astonishment. Then they went inside and while everything was plain and simple, it was all clean, fresh and new and there was everything necessary for reasonable comfort. Upstairs the beds stood, with spotless white covers; neat squares of carpet adorned the floors. In the living room a bountiful table was laid, and the kettle sang merrily on the stove.

"But James," exclaimed Mrs. Graham when she could get her breath, "I thought you said we should have to rough it, why this is lovely! I can't tell you how pleased and happy I am." To the weary travellers this neat, pretty place was indeed a delight, and for a few hours was the scene of much contentment and joy as they talked together trying to make up for the weeks they had been separated.

Years have passed since that evening; the Grahams have prospered greatly; they live in a much more pretentious home now than that simple little cot, but they all say that no home ever gave them the delight and joy which came from that first resting place in a strange country. —E.L.

A Reminder of the "Dog Days"

To be far—far out on the topping top of a big green wave laced with cool white foam; far—far out where no beach signs can say that you shall wear stockings-and-bloomers to your ankles; far out, riding a big silver-and-black fish with a playful willingness to carry you forward of his silver backfin, with the wind and wave calling and looping round your hair, salt-spraying far out where the sea-people come up to play and follow you their strange fish tails seen waveringly in the green of the surface, sunlit water, against the dark blue of the deep water below, their strange eyes smiling, their green hair trailing their white hands tossing; to be far out—cool—cool—and "everything!"

'Oh, dream of dog-days. Oh—foggy August! Oh, sugar as the "Virginian" said when he had reached the end of more mature vocabulary and still needed to talk. —Nell Brinkley.
